I take the liberty of addressing you these few lines only for the purpose of corroborating the truth of the facts stated in the accompanying representation, and certainly heavy would be the labor which this place so much exposed to the sword of the Saboteur and account of its isolated situation, would have to undergo if the first request therein contained was not to be attended to. We are now about eight U. S. citizens living, some of us already for more than one year most accurately waiting for the taking possession of this territory by the U. S. government, as the condition we find ourselves now in is almost paramount to penitentiary.

At the same time I would not fail to offer your facilities my services at this place for any command in regard preparing whatever might be required for the to be ordered troops, observing only that there will be an want of Wheat, Corn, Beans, Beef, but as regards the rest of necessaries for life, there would be no brought along with the troops, as such only as very high prices if at all could be procured there.

Without any further, I have the honor to remain

Yours truly,
J. C. Anthony

Sir.

I take the liberty of addressing you these few lines only for the purpose of corroborating the truth of the facts stated in the accompanying representation, and certainly heavy would be the losses which this place so much exposed to the inroads of the Apaches on account of its isolated situation, would have to undergo of the just request therein contained was not to be attended to. We are here about eight U.S. citizens living, some of us for more than one year most anxiously waiting for the taking possession of this territory by the U.S. government, as the condition we find ourselves now is almost paramount to penitentiary.

At the same time I would not fail to offer your Excellency my services at this place for any command as regards preparing whatever might be required for the to be ordered troops, observing only that there will be no want of Wheat, Corn, Beans & Beef; but as regards the rest of necessities for life, these would be [have] to be brought along with the troops, as such. only at very high prices if at all could be procured here

Without any further, I have the honor to remain
